Message to Members

A new year is upon us and, with the way 2020 went for most of us, I for one, am looking forward to a fresh start. One way to get a fresh start is to work on your finances. I know that money is tight for a lot of our members right now, and a lot of our members are looking for ways to improve their financial situation.

I've been in credit unions for more than 41 years and one thing I learned about credit unions is that we care about our member's well-being and are always willing to help educate them on financial well-being. If you or someone you know is looking for ways to improve their financial situation in 2021, here are three ideas that can help you be more proactive with your money.

First, establish an emergency fund. I know saving is hard to do manually; therefore, I recommend automating it. If you usually put your whole check into your checking account, redirect a portion of those funds into a new savings account. Sooner than you think, you'll have enough money to help out when an emergency arises. Contact us to help set up your new emergency account.

Second, think of ways you can increase your income or lower expenses. You can organize and sell items that you no longer use. You could look for a part-time job or a side hustle. You could evaluate your recurring monthly subscriptions and make sure that you are using what you are paying for. You could even look at monthly spending and work on cutting unnecessary expenses.

Third, do some research. You may never fix your money shortage woes if you don't make an effort to find out what you could be doing better. Whether your problem is saving, spending, investing, or budgeting, spend time reading up on personal finances, and you will likely come across a tip or idea that will change your life. It sounds easy, though sometimes it's the little things that make all the difference.

As we enter into 2021, myself and the staff at Brewery Credit Union want to thank you for your patience this year. Along with the challenges of the pandemic, we also had our construction project going. We appreciate your membership and look forward to helping you achieve your financial goals this year!

Sincerely,

Steven Janssen, President/CEO

Sign-in instructions will be provided the week of the meeting.

Join us for our first virtual Annual Meeting.

As a not-for-profit that is cooperatively owned by our members, the entire credit union benefits when our members engage and participate in their ownership. That's why we invite our members to attend our annual meeting each year. It's an opportunity for you to meet our management and elected board who serve the membership. It's also an occasion that we use to report on the performance of our mutually owned credit union and look ahead to the future.

Attend the Annual Meeting for a chance to win a VISA Gift Card!
